prevention services.

(E)(i) As such, foster care candidate eligibility screens must be completed for each prevention services case.

(ii) Cases determined to be eligible as a foster care candidate must also have a prevention plan completed.

(c) Prevention services case following a child maltreatment investigation.

(1) A prevention services case will be offered when the division has contact with a household through an investigation if the division's approved safety and risk assessment results recommend opening a case, but the investigation is unsubstantiated.

(2) The goal of the prevention services case in these instances is to provide services to strengthen the family and prevent future maltreatment.

(d) Prevention services for underage juvenile offenders.

(1) A prevention services case may be provided to a family when one (1) of the household members is an underage juvenile offender (UJO).

(2) The division will offer services to the caregivers for the UJO to include, but not be limited to, referrals for offender treatment and collaborating with the child's school to ensure safety of the child or other children in the classroom.

(e) Prevention services following differential response. For families involved in differential response that require services beyond sixty (60) days to remedy the conditions or issues that resulted in the child maltreatment report sent to the differential response pathway, those services may be offered through a prevention services case (see 9 CAR § 40-302, differential response, for more information), particularly if the division's approved safety and risk assessment results recommend opening a case.

(f) Prevention services via family in need of services.

(1) There are some situations in which a judge may order family services for a household through a Family In Need of Services (FINS).

(2) The agency will provide such family services through the opening of a prevention services case (see 9 CAR § 40-341, family in need of services, for more information).

9 CAR § 40-302. Differential response.

(a) Overview.

(1)(A) Differential response (DR) is a family engagement approach that allows the Division of Children and Family Services to respond to reports of specific, low risk allegations of child maltreatment with a family assessment approach rather than a
